KEYSTONE FIRE CHIEFS MEET IN TWO SESSIONS AT EDGELY

VISITING FIRE CHIEFS REMINDED BY KING THAT THIS IS "HOTTEST SPOT IN PENNA."; DISCUSSES PROBLEMS OF COMMUNITY GROWTH

EDGELY, May 19—Karl C. King, member of congress from the eight congressional district, Saturday evening, told the visiting fire chiefs of Pennsylvania attending a spring meeting here that this is the "hottest spot in Pennsylvania".

Congressman King spoke as follows: "I feel that I should be listed as a member of the welcoming committee rather than as a speaker at this fine meeting. This is distinctly home territory for me. As most of you may know, I'm a farmer up the road just a couple of miles. I'm sure all of us native to this corner of Bucks County are glad to welcome visiting firemen here tonight to the hottest spot in Pennsylvania—and I'm not referring to the weather."

"We do have an occasional fire which has to be handled by fireman, but the heat I refer to in this territory has to be handled by school boards, township supervisors, borough councils, assessors, tax collectors, and all the other people who have anything to do with the problems of sudden community growth. We are warned that 50,000 new people will come in to this community in the next three or four years, so you can well imagine the fuss and furor going on over schools, roads, water systems, sewers, shopping centers, and public services of all kinds.

ers worried about their front yards sliding into the river and now, as if we didn't already have enough

DINNER FOLLOWS

St. Mark's R. C. Church was the scene of a wedding Saturday afternoon when Miss Alice Marie Neill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neill, Sr., 10 Jangwood Place, Bristol Terrace II, was married to Mr. Joseph Stein, Jr., son of Mr. Joseph Stein, Sr., of Philadelphia.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Albert L. Glass. A recital of organ music preceding the ceremony was rendered by Miss Katherine Keating, Linden street. The vocalist was Miss Margaret Fallon, who sang "Ave Maria," and "Promise Me".

Entering the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. Arthur Neill, Bristol Terrace, the bride chose a gown of white nylon and chantilly lace over satin, modeled on grace-ful lines, a demurely high neck-line of nylon, made with a fitted long sleeved basque bodice, that fastened with tiny buttons, a floor-length full flowing skirt. Her shoulder length veil of tulle, falling from her Juliet cap, devenie-

Sen. Edward Martin Polled A Significantly Large Vote In Last Tuesday's Primary

The following editorial is reprinted here because it reflects light upon political matters of considerable importance. It is from the Chester (Pa.) Times of Tuesday, April 29, 1952.

In all the hubub about presidential preference votes and write-ins at last Tuesday's primary election, Pennsylvania citizens may have missed one interesting result which reflects great honor on a Pennsylvania son.

Pennsylvania's U. S. Sen. Edward Martin, in a three-way contest for nomination and reelection, piled up a vote which, when official totals are compiled, may well top the votes of all others on the Republicans' ballot or entered the voting machine booth.

Thursday before the primary, while in Washington, we fell in alongside Senator Martin as he walked from the senate chamber across the Capitol plaza to his office, two blocks away. He had just made an address on the senate floor, and he carried a stack of papers pertaining to affairs of state.

Moving faster than we usually do, in order to keep up with the brisk military stride of the former commanding general of Pennsylvania's famous 28th Division, our talk revealed what we believe to be important reasons for Senator Martin's success in public life.

Senator Martin has a wholesome regard for moral values and for

ARMY GOES ATOMIC

Army Secretary Frank Pace may not be exaggerating greatly when he says the Army's newest weapon—atomic artillery—heralds a new era in the waging of war. According to the secretary's word picture of the new weapon, it resembles an ordinary big field piece mounted on a cradle between a pair of engine-cabs. It is a self-propelled weapon that can rumble over roads at speeds up to 35 miles an hour, cross bridges that will bear its weight, and fit into landing craft.

A prototype exists, for the secretary said "it" had been tested with conventional ammunition.

Weight of the missile this new weapon would fire and tactical range were not revealed. Instead Mr. Pace compared the effect of conventional artillery and an atomic field piece in this fashion: He said the atomic blast that wrecked the Japanese city of Nagasaki had an explosive force equal to 1,300 battalions of medium artillery firing in salvo at a single target. Comparing it another way, he said the Nagasaki bomb was equivalent to the full bomb load of 50 to 200 strategic bombers.

The top plane figure here, multiplied by the bomb capacity of a B-29, would add up to 2,000,000 pounds of high explosive.

To be sure, this comparison is full of ifs. But there is no doubt that an atomic artillery piece would, to quote the secretary, "give a field commander tremendous fire power" at his fingertips and directly under his control. The new found ability to sit back dozens of miles and plaster an enemy garrison or troop concentration with the searing power of an atomic blast should cause some drastic revisions in basic texts on ground warfare.

When the word got out that "baby" bombs were being exploded on the Nevada testing grounds last year it was a foregone conclusion that the Army would soon be getting atomic artillery. Perhaps the greatest significance of Secretary Pace's revelation is the knowledge that the ground forces, while last to arrive, have finally stepped over the threshold into the atomic warfare age. This fact restores to some extent the balance of land, sea and air power that has been a tradition of American strategy.

Whether newer tactical developments still weigh the balance differently in the near future is to be seen.

Ohio officials seized a case of limburger cheese which they claimed was spoiled, but it has not been revealed how they expect to prove it.

Cleanup of political corruption in Washington seems to have died from neglect or to have been postponed until the votes are counted in November.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Jan. 14, 1904. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

An examination of the insurance maps by John C. Mauler reveals the fact that there are located 1,583 houses in Bristol.

Until the thaw set in on Monday a horse and sleigh was in regular service, carrying passengers over the ice between Burlington and Bristol.

It is estimated that the mills of Bristol pay out $80,000 a month in wages. The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. pays about $1,500 per month to Bristol employees.

Chief Saxton and the police officers did good work last week in enforcing the ordinance compelling the removal of snow from the sidewalks and as a result walking was made much more comfortable.

At a meeting held on last Thursday, Howard J. James, Esq., was elected a member of the Board of Directors of the Bucks County Trust Company, of Doylestown, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of B. F. Gilkeson, Esq.

The failure of the suit of the borough of Langhorne against the trolley company because of the failure to have an ordinance correctly recorded in an ordinance book, signed by the burgess and certified by the clerk, has raised the query, "How many of the ordinances passed by the Bristol borough council are in legal form?"

A movement is on foot having for its object the division of the second ward of Bristol. The ward has become so large that it is cumbersome, especially at election time. It is proposed to divide the ward at Lafayette street, the district between Penn and the south side of Lafayette street remaining the second ward and the district including the north side of Lafayette and beyond to be the fifth ward. At present, there are about 350 voters in the first district and the proposed new district would contain about 250 voters.

At the regular meeting of the members of Bristol Castle, No. 103, Ancient Order of the Knights of the Mystic Chain, held on January 11, the following officers were installed: Samuel Williams, P. C.; John S. Williams, C.; James Guy, V.C.; W. Jackson, M.C.; G. J. Shepard, Chaplain; John Booz, I.G.; J. P. Stout, trustee.

At the annual meeting of the members of Good Will Hose Company, No. 3, of Bristol, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: President, Anton Ternes; vice-president, William Dougherty; treasurer, Frank Flum; secretary, Francis Ellis; trustee, for three years, Samuel Milnor; foreman, George McLaughlin; assistant foreman, William Simons, Jr.; Lewis Turner Hellings demonstrated his great popularity by being elected janitor over 12 opponents by a plurality of fifteen votes.

After being free from the disease since last April, Bristol has again started to battle with the smallpox scourge. Last week, Albert White, a resident of West Philadelphia, visited his mother residing at 438 Jefferson avenue, and soon after his arrival developed a severe case of smallpox. The house was quarantined on Sunday and every precaution has been taken to prevent the spread of the disease. The victim is employed as fireman on the Pennsylvania railroad, and has never been successfully vaccinated, even in childhood.

At the annual election held on Tuesday morning, the following officers were unanimously re-elected directors of the Farmers National the two-party political system in the United States. As a Republican, he puts country before party, and he does everything possible to make his party worthy of the support of the citizens. His record as a soldier in the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection, on the Mexican Border, in France during World War I, and in the training phase of World War II; his public record as auditor general, state treasurer, adjutant general and war-time governor of Pennsylvania, and his record as United States Senator the past six years, all attest to the integrity of the man.

The annual hotel dinner was served at the Hotel Silbert, where the following excellent menu was offered: Oyster cocktail, mulligatawny soup, butter, rolls, terrapin, celery, champagne sherbet, roast turkey stuffed with oysters, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, asparagus, peas, chicken salad, ice cream, fancy cakes, mandarin ginger, nuts, raisins, salted peanuts.

The regular monthly meeting of the Bristol public school board was held on Wednesday evening of last week in the directors' room of the high school building. The directors present were John K. Wildman, E. H. Foster, H. S. Rue, W. H. Hall, P. J. Barrett, Doron Green.

The superintendent reported that the scholars were preparing an exhibit to be displayed at the world's fair to be held at St. Louis the coming summer.

As a specific example of the devotion to duty which has marked Senator Martin's military and civil career, we took time to check roll call votes in the senate, from Jan. 1 to March 31 of this year. Senator Martin was in his place in the senate and was recorded on 23 of them.

Pennsylvania's junior Senator, James H. Duff was recorded on only eight of the 24 roll call votes. Senator Martin was reluctant to run for reelection this year, fearing that he had fulfilled his responsibilities through many years of public service, and in line with the words he has framed in large letters on the wall of his Washington office—"No Man is Indispensable."

But it appears from the votes of more than 850,000 Pennsylvania Republicans last Tuesday that his decision to be candidate for reelection has the generous endorsement of party members. And on the record, he has earned that endorsement.

all the violence was the result of a few irresponsible pickets, and that a great many of the men at the Levitt building project are union men.

Mr. Syme further stated, a meeting of the Philadelphia Building and Construction Trades Council, A. F. L., will be held today at 5 p.m., at 715 N. Broad street, Philadelphia, to map out future plans.

"Bud" Myers, public relations man for Levitt and Sons, Inc., stated this morning it had been announced at Harrisburg that the state police will remain at Levittown indefinitely.

Tullytown's four regular policemen, 54 special guards (17 on duty daily), and 15 special police, are assigned to the Levittown area.

Crowds again visited the exhibition center yesterday and there were lines of people in front of each type of dwelling, filing through to view the interior.

It was stated at the office of Levittown this morning that 50 houses had been sold during the week-end, bringing the total to over 4,000 sold thus far.

Warren Gave Up Golf To Devote Time to Family

to New York for a $100-a-plate gubernatorial dinner.

At this dinner, New York's Gov. Dewey, who headed the Republican ticket in '48, publicly expressed his thanksgiving that he was not campaigning for the presidency.

"Thank heaven, I do not have to make six speeches a day like Earl Warren," Dewey said.

When Warren's turn to speak came, he turned his dynamic grin and former running mate and said:

"Politics is a form of narcotics, son. Be careful you don't have a lapse."

Warren, a big, hale and hearty interior with a thick thatch of grey hair, is a handsome man and indefatigable campaigner. On a recent speaking tour, Gov. Warren ended at a small airport in north California. It was raining cats and dogs, there was no car to meet him and the town where he was to speak was eight miles distant. The Governor started hooting it along the muddy roads and was half-way to town before a farmer gave him a lift in his truck. The two men talked about the weather and farm conditions until the farmer finally asked the identity of his passenger.

When the farmer discovered he was the Governor as his guest, he shook down at Warren's muddy shoes and trouser cuffs and (according to the story) said: "Governor, I'm sure glad to meet you. I've been waiting all my life to meet a politician with his feet on the ground."

Warren's feet have been on the ground almost since infancy. As a boy in Bakersfield, Cal., he carried paper route that conditioned him to mile on foot. When he was little older, but still in school, he earned spending money as a broad call boy who walked endless miles routing out train and airline crews for their trips.

The life of Gov. Warren repeats the time-honored American success story. His father, Methias Warren, was brought to this country from Norway as an infant. Both father and son found this a land of golden opportunity.

The Governor worked his way through the University of California and its law school. He was admitted to the California bar in 1914 and practiced in San Francisco and Oakland until World War I. He enlisted in the army as a private in 1917 and was mustered out with the rank of first Lieutenant at the end.

Warren got his first taste of politics in 1919 as clerk of the Judiciary Committee of the State legislature. The taste obviously satisfied, for he has been in politics ever since, working his way through county office until his nomination in 1938 as Attorney General of California on the Democratic, Republican and Progressive tickets.

Warren was elected Governor of California in 1943. He has since been re-elected twice, the only man in the history of the State to have been thrice elected to the Governor's office. Always, he has won whopping majorities. In 1950, defeated his Democratic opponent, James Roosevelt, son of the President, by a smashing majority of 1,127,898.

The only defeat chalked up in Warren's winning political career was suffered in 1948 when the Democrats blanketed the Republican national ticket, headed by Dewey and Warren.

Now Warren, who has proved a fantastic vote getter in his native state, is after the big prize for himself. His best chance may come, according to the experts, if the convention is deadlocked between Sen. Taft and Gen. Eisenhower.

Usually a mild-mannered man, the Governor can generate a full head of steam under provocation. He erupted on election day in 1948, and not because he was defeated, either.

The Governor lost his temper when a photographer took Warren's picture as he voted.

"Don't you know it is illegal to photograph a person while he is voting?" Warren demanded. The Governor insisted that the film be destroyed, and it was, amid apologies by the photographer and his employers.

Warren couldn't afford to play football when he attended the University of California, but it is his favorite sport. His three sons have played the game at their respective schools and the whole family hangs on the radio on Saturday afternoons during the football season.

The Governor is always prepared to go out on a limb and predict the score of the annual California-Stanford game. He is a good loser and when his predictions go awry, he has a stock answer for his hecklers: "They pay off on the score board, not my prophecies."

Both in public and private, his speech is peppered with homely maxims. His favorites include "There's more than one way to skin a cat" and "We must learn to walk before we can run." He doesn't smoke and takes only an occasional drink.

The Warren family life is idyllic. When his six sons and daughters started arriving, Warren gave up golf in order to spend his spare time with them. He loves to hunt and fish, and the whole family is apt to go on such trips with him when he can spare the time.

Because Joe DiMaggio and Gil McDougald hail from California, the Warrens are Yankees fans who love to get daddy to bring them to New York when the Yanks are in the world series.

Life with the Warrens is on the informal side. The Governor walks to and from the capitol in Sacramento. He lunches at a drug store counter or at a little Spanish restaurant where they serve his favorite tamales.

Even in a Presidential race, Warren does not need any one to blow his horn. The Governor can blow his own. As a student he earned money playing the clarinet in local orchestras. He still carries a membership card in the musicians' union.

such efforts with local, state, and federal agencies.

The morning session at 10 a.m. was called to order in a business meeting by the president, Chief Edwin Robb. A committee consisting of Robb, James Lavin, chief of the Atlantic Refinery fire dept., and chairman Robert Graham, fire Marshall of Bucks County, was chosen to study the new fire code.

adopted by Philadelphia. It is the purpose of this committee and the association to modernize the fire code.

The association accepted 59 new members, it was announced.

Gerald B. Horton, Deputy Director of the Eastern Training School, Ongontz Center, addressed the group in the morning on Civil Defense Training. Mr. Horton spoke of training during the last war and used Southampton England as an example of its value. He explained that the purpose of the course is to teach amateurs how to extinguish incipient fires, thus allowing the professionals to fight important fires. He added that the Ongontz school was one of three federal schools for CD training.

He extended an invitation to all firemen to come to the school and learn to be an instructor, adding that sooner or later the professional firemen of the country will be determined. The Rev. Mr. Pavlidis will also have charge of Fallsington Church, and it is believed that decision will be made later by that congregation as to whether Fallsington Church will be continued, or whether the congregation will meet in the Fairless Hills edifice, work on which is soon to start. In the meantime services will be conducted in Fallsington Church.

Another change is the separation of Washington Crossing-Yardley circuit. The Rev. Jesse G. Eaton, who has served these two churches since 1949, has been assigned to Gethsemane Church, Phila. The Rev. P. F. Palmer, of Mt. Pocono, has been named to Yardley; and the Rev. Mr. Hallam to Washington Crossing.

Fifteen were ordained deacons and 12 as elders, yesterday, at ceremonies over which Bishop Fred P. Corson, resident Bishop of the Methodist Conference of Philadelphia, presided. The ceremonies took place in Old St. George's Church, 4th street and the Delaware River Bridge, Philadelphia. The ceremony was one of the concluding events of the annual conference.

Among those ordained as deacons were: E. Luke Carlson of Trevose, brother of the Rev. R. L. Carlson.

See Great Interest In Swimming Program

Sister, 172 Elm street, Winder Village.

Of greatest interest in the Bristol area have been the beginner and intermediate swimming classes. They have served two very important purposes. First, and most important, the children have learned the basic safety rules of swimming. Second, they have had fun while gaining confidence in themselves by learning to swim the correct way.

Parents are urged to attend classes with their children whenever possible.

The Red Cross "learn to swim" program is a nation-wide plan used in camps, schools, colleges, as well as the armed forces. All instructors are thoroughly trained in water safety methods and handling small craft in addition to the teaching of swimming before they receive the instructor certificate. Michael DeAngelis, who will instruct in Bristol area has been active in the program for some time.

Classes will start the week of July 7th at St. Francis pool, Eddington. Two morning classes will be held there, at 10 and 11, Monday through Friday. All afternoon classes, for the entire program, will be held at Silver Lake. The week of July 14th, morning classes will be held at the bridge in Newville. The morning classes will be held at St. Francis pool the week of July 28th and at Silver Lake the following week. No classes will be scheduled for the week of July 21st. Any child who has passed one test in the first two weeks will be able to register for an advanced class during that week.

in white satin. A small ruffle of white lace held the veils in place.

The boys and girls of the intermediate grades of St. Thomas school then followed, the former wearing the dark trousers and white blouses with pale blue ties, and the girls attired in white dresses with wreaths of blue and white daisies in their hair. Next in line were the 12 boy graduates in navy blue coats and white trousers, each accompanied by a small page attired in a white suit. Each carried a single pink rose.

The girl graduates followed, attired in taffeta gowns of pastel hues of blue, pink, yellow and white with short puffed sleeves, the bodices each featured three net ruffles in front with a row of crystal buttons. Their full length skirts were worn in a hoop, and elbow length white gloves. They wore tiaras of small seed pearls. They carried nosegays of sweet peas and carnations. In their hair rested ruffled bands of white net.

The May Queen, Christine Christian, was attired in a similar gown of white taffeta, over which was worn a blue satin cape with a long train. This had a regal collar. She wore a seed pearl tiara in her hair and she carried a silver tray upon which rested the Queen's crown of white roses. She was accompanied by four small girls as train bearers. They also carried small nosegays of sweet peas and carnations. Accompanied by two altar boys, Father Rodgers was last in line of procession.

Entering the church, the entire group sang the hymn "Bring Flowers of the Fairest". The May queen and her entire court proceeded to the main altar where the dedication to the Blessed Mother was received. She then presented the crown of roses to Father who in turn

The boy graduates and their pages filed to the altar where they knelt and dedicated themselves to the Sacred Heart. While a hymn to the Sacred Heart was sung, the group then placed their roses on the railing. Following the singing of "Veni Creator" a short sermon was preached by the Rev. Father Rodgers. The services were brought to a close with solemn benediction of the most blessed sacrament.

Bride Wears White; Attendants Are Gowned In Lavender, Yellow

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—Wearing a satin gown, with trim of Chantilly lace, and featuring a long lace-trimmed train, Miss Ruth Louise Kubernus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Friedrich Kubernus, Newvilleport road, Eddington, took the vows Saturday which united her in marriage to Mr. Dennis Calvin Moore, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis C. Moore, 2020 Emerald street. Her scalloped tiara was tuffed with pearls.

The four o'clock ceremony took place in Hope Lutheran Church, with the Rev. Mark E. Bennethum officiating.

As Mrs. Anna Breen provided organ music, Mr. Kubernus escorted his daughter to the altar. Soprano, Miss Elizabeth Fields had her offerings "Oh Promise Me", "I Love You", and "The Lord's Prayer".

As maid of honor, the bride's sister, Miss Elfriede Kubernus, was dressed in green net and lace. The other attendants were: Miss Dorothy Davidson, wearing lavender; Miss Elaine Roach, in yellow. Their gowns were strapless, and their necklets featured mandarin collars. Each wore a picture hat and white gloves, and carried an old-fashioned bouquet decorated with white roses and net in colors matching their gowns.

Serving Mr. Moore as best man was his brother-in-law, Mr. George Kinloch; and ushers were Messrs. William and Charles Moore, brothers of the bride-groom.

The reception took place at seven p.m., 125 attending the function in Swiss Turners Hall.

For a trip through New York and the New England states to Canada, Mrs. Moore chose a brown slaid suit, brown leather bag, brown slippers of leather and suede, brown straw hat with sea-shell decoration; white blouse and gloves. The couple will make their home at 5238 N. Second street.

Chosen by Mrs. Kubernus for the ceremony was a pink lace dress with navy blue accessories. Mrs. Moore, mother of the bridegroom, wore a navy blue dress and white accessories. Both wore orchids.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Curtis Loux,
Pastor Oakhurst Chapel
Pennell

Hebrews 11:6—"But without faith it is impossible to please Him: for he that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him."

Faith: That which is the basis for the very existence of mankind. Faith: The thing that causes our economic system to function. Faith: The thing that enables man to live with his fellowman. Faith: The thing that puts us into contact with God.

Faith must have a basis; for could you put your faith; your trust, your confidence into something that does not exist? What is the basis of Faith? Your Faith? You must have faith in something; perhaps it is yourself, perhaps some friend, perhaps a system, it must be something.

To be fundamentally secure, our faith must be in something that is greater than ourself. To find the highest ground for the establishment of our faith; we must put our faith in God. Our economic system is founded upon this fact, for our money, the medium of exchange, bears these words: "In God We Trust".

Where is your faith grounded? God seeks those who would put their trust into Him. To find Him; we must find Him through His Son, our Lord Jesus Christ.

His words are: "He that cometh to Me I will in no wise cast out."

KEYSTONE FIRE CHIEFS MEET IN TWO SESSIONS AT EDGELEY

Heard Speakers Discuss Various Subjects At Spring Session

TOUR LOWER BUCKS

Name Committee to Study New Fire Code of Philadelphia

EDGELEY, May 19.—The Keystone State Fire Chiefs Association held its 52nd annual meeting here Saturday with 300 fire chiefs and guests in attendance.

The day began with a business meeting at 10 a. m. and continued with a luncheon, a tour of lower Bucks County, dinner and an impressive list of speakers.

Congressman Karl C. King was one of the speakers followed by Maurice E. Biederman, vice-president and general sales manager of Levitt and Sons Inc., who also addressed the group. Biederman lauded private enterprise in this country and used Levittown, N. Y., as an example of how private enterprise can raise the standards of living. He stated "American spirit, not dollars is the reward that we (Levitt and Sons) look for." Biederman said that after the last war many veterans were unable to find decent homes and that the Levitt project in New York helped to solve that problem. He added: "The boys (when supplied with adequate housing) were not fertile fields for subversive ideas which creep in."

John T. Shillingford, Staff Supervisor, Production Administrator, Defense, United States Steel Co., presented an address to the group. Mr. Shillingford's remarks were directed at the problem of organizing defense training. His speech was very detailed, but it offered four main requirements for good defense. They were: An effective organization to continue to study the various aspects of the problem; planning to prosecute actively; protective measures be put into effect as rapidly as developed; and full co-operation to be maintained.

VISITING FIRE CHIEFS REMINDED BY KING THAT THIS IS "HOTTEST SPOT IN PENNA."; DISCUSSES PROBLEMS OF COMMUNITY GROWTH

EDGELEY, May 19.—Karl C. King, member of congress from the eight congressional district, Saturday evening, told the visiting fire chiefs of Pennsylvania attending a spring meeting here that this is the "hottest spot in Pennsylvania".

Congressman King spoke as follows: "I feel that I should be listed as a member of the welcoming committee rather than as a speaker at this fine meeting. This is distinctly home territory for me. As most of you may know, I'm a farmer up the road just a couple of miles. I'm sure all of us native to this corner of Bucks County are glad to welcome visiting firemen here tonight to the hottest spot in Pennsylvania—and I'm not referring to the weather."

"We do have an occasional fire which has to be handled by fireman, but the heat I refer to in this territory has to be handled by school boards, township superintendents, borough councils, assessors, tax collectors, and all the other people who have anything to do with the problems of sudden community growth. We are warned that 50,000 new people will come in to this community in the next three or four years, so you can well imagine the fuss and furor going on over schools, roads, water systems, sewers, shopping centers, and public services of all kinds.

"The deepening of the Delaware channel has nearby property owners worried about their front yards sliding into the river and now, as if we didn't already have enough

The following editorial is reprinted here because it reflects light upon political matters of considerable importance. It is from the Chester (Pa.) Times of Tuesday, April 29, 1952.

In all the hubub about presidential preference votes and write-ins at last Tuesday's primary election, Pennsylvania citizens may have missed one interesting result which reflects great honor on a Pennsylvania son.

Pennsylvania's U. S. Sen. Edward Martin, in a three-way contest for nomination and reelection, piled up a vote which, when official totals are compiled, may well top the votes of all others on the Republican ballot.

Without a campaign chest, without advertising, Senator Martin's unofficial primary vote total was about even with the presidential preference total given to General Eisenhower, (it may exceed it in the official count), whose backers toured the state and poured out a young fortune in advertising, mailings and radio time. And Senator Martin's name appeared in fifth place on the ballot, while Eisenhower's name was the first one faced by voters when they picked

Governor of California Is An Indefatigable Campaigner

FEET ON THE GROUND

Both He and His Father Found This A Land of Opportunity

It may be propaganda to win the housewives' vote, but it is said of Gov. Earl Warren of California that he gave up golf to devote more time to his family. Famed writer-columnist Inez Robb tells the story in this sixth article in a series of personalized close-ups of the leading Republican and Democratic candidates for President.

By Inez Robb
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
ARTICLE SIX

There is a feeling, strictly non-political, throughout this country that any man with a trio of daughters as blonde and beautiful as Dorothy, Virginia and Nina ("Honkey Tonk") Warren ought to be able to win the Presidential nomination and office by acclamation.

Mrs. Warren is pretty as a picture, too, and when Gov. Earl Warren of California campaigns with his women folk, as he did for the GOP vice-presidency in 1948, they are always a sensation.

It is doubtful if any young girl ever had more persons rooting in her corner than Nina, the youngest of the daughters, when she was stricken with polio in 1950.

"The happiest gift we ever got in our lives was Nina's remarkable recovery," the Governor said recently when he and his ladies flew

ARMY GOES ATOMIC

Army Secretary Frank Pace may not be exaggerating greatly when he says the Army's newest weapon—atomic artillery—heralds a new era in the waging of war. According to the secretary's word picture of the new weapon, it resembles an ordinary big field piece mounted on a cradle between a pair of engine-cabs. It is a self-propelled weapon that can rumble over roads at speeds up to 35 miles an hour, cross bridges that will bear its weight, and fit into landing craft.

A prototype exists, for the secretary said "it" had been tested with conventional ammunition.

Weight of the missile this new weapon would fire and tactical range were not revealed. Instead Mr. Pace compared the effect of conventional artillery and an atomic field piece in this fashion: He said the atomic blast that wrecked the Japanese city of Nagasaki had an explosive force equal to 1,300 battalions of medium artillery firing in salvo at a single target. Comparing it another way, he said the Nagasaki bomb was equivalent to the full bomb load of 50 to 200 strategic bombers.

The top plane figure here, multiplied by the bomb capacity of a B-29, would add up to 2,000,000 pounds of high explosive.

To be sure, this comparison is full of ifs. But there is no doubt that an atomic artillery piece would, to quote the secretary, "give a field commander tremendous fire power" at his fingertips and directly under his control. The new found ability to sit back dozens of miles and plaster an enemy garrison or troop concentration with the searing power of an atomic blast should cause some drastic revisions in basic texts on ground warfare.

When the word got out that "baby" bombs were being exploded on the Nevada testing grounds last year it was a foregone conclusion that the Army would soon be getting atomic artillery. Perhaps the greatest significance of Secretary Pace's revelation is the knowledge that the ground forces, while last to arrive, have finally stepped over the threshold into the atomic warfare age. This fact restores to some extent the balance of land, sea and air power that has been a tradition of American strategy.

Whether newer tactical developments still weigh the balance differently in the near future is to be seen.

Ohio officials seized a case of hamburger cheese which they claimed was spoiled, but it has not been revealed how they expect to prove it.

Cleanup of political corruption in Washington seems to have died from neglect or to have been postponed until the votes are counted in November.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Jan. 14, 1904. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

An examination of the insurance maps by John C. Maule reveals the fact that there are located 1,583 houses in Bristol.

Until the thaw set in on Monday a horse and sleigh was in regular service, carrying passengers over the ice between Burlington and Bristol.

It is estimated that the mills of Bristol pay out $80,000 a month in wages. The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. pays about $1,500 per month to Bristol employees.

Chief Saxton and the police officers did good work last week in enforcing the ordinance compelling the removal of snow from the sidewalks, and as a result walking was made much more comfortable.

At a meeting held on last Thursday, Howard L. James, Esq., was elected a member of the Board of Directors of the Bucks County Trust Company, of Doylestown, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of B. F. Gilkeson, Esq.

The failure of the suit of the borough of Langhorne against the trolley company because of the failure to have an ordinance correctly recorded in an ordinance book, signed by the burgess and certified by the clerk, has raised the query, "How many of the ordinances passed by the Bristol borough council are in legal form?"

A movement is on foot having for its object the division of the second ward of Bristol. The ward has become so large that it is cumbersome, especially at election time. It is proposed to divide the ward at Lafayette street, the district between Penn and the south side of Lafayette street remaining the second ward and the district including the north side of Lafayette and be-

Warren Gave Up Golf To Devote Time to Family

to New York for a $100-a-plate Republican dinner.

At this dinner, New York's Gov. Tom Dewey, who headed the Republican ticket in '48, publicly expressed his thanksgiving that he was not campaigning for the residency.

"Thank heaven, I do not have to make six speeches a day like Earl Warren," Dewey said.

When Warren's turn to speak came, he turned his dynamic grin to his former running mate and said:

"Politics is a form of narcotics. Don't be careful you don't have a lapse."

Warren, a big, hale and hearty soterner with a thick thatch of hair, is a handsome man and an indefatigable campaigner. On a recent speaking tour, Gov. Warren landed at a small airport in north California. It was raining cats and dogs, there was no car to meet him and the town where he was to speak was eight miles distant. The Governor started hoofing it along the muddy roads and was half-way to town before a farmer gave him a lift in his truck. The men talked about the weather and farm conditions until the farmer finally asked the identity of his passenger.

When the farmer discovered he had the Governor as his guest, he looked down at Warren's muddy soles and trouser cuffs and (according to the story) said:

"Governor, I'm sure glad to meet you. I've been waiting all my life to meet a politician with feet on the ground."

Warren's feet have been on the ground almost since infancy. As a boy in Bakersfield, Cal., he carried paper route that conditioned him to mile on foot. When he was little older, but still in school, he earned spending money as a railroad boy who walked endless miles routing out train and engine crews for their trips. The life of Gov. Warren repeats the time-honored American success story. His father, Methias Warren, was brought to this country from Norway as an infant. Both father and son found this a land of golden opportunity.

The Governor worked his way through the University of California and its law school. He was admitted to the California bar in 1914 and practiced in San Francisco and Oakland until World War I. He enlisted in the army as a private in 1917 and was mustered out with the rank of first Lieutenant at the war's end.

Warren got his first taste of politics in 1919 as clerk of the Judiciary Committee of the State legislature. The taste obviously satisfied, for he has been in politics ever since, working his way through county office until his nomination in 1938 as Attorney General of California on the Democratic, Republican and Progressive tickets.

Warren was elected Governor of California in 1943. He has since been re-elected twice, the only man in the history of the State to have been thrice elected to the Governor's office. Always, he has won whoppings majorities. In 1950, defeated his Democratic opponent, James Roosevelt, son of the late President, by a smashing majority of 1,127,898.

The only defeat chalked up in Warren's winning political career was suffered in 1948 when the Democrats blanketed the Republican national ticket, headed by Dewey and Warren.

Now Warren, who has proved a fantastic vote getter in his native state, is after the big prize for himself. His best chance may come, according to the experts, if the convention is deadlocked between Sen. Taft and Gen. Eisenhower.

Usually a mild-mannered man, the Governor can generate a full head of steam under provocation. He erupted on election day in 1948, and not because he was defeated, either.

The Governor lost his temper when a photographer took Warren's picture as he voted.

"Don't you know it is illegal to photograph a person while he is voting?" Warren demanded.

The Governor insisted that the film be destroyed, and it was, amid apologies by the photographer and his employers.

Warren couldn't afford to play football when he attended the University of California, but it is his favorite sport. His three sons have played the game at their respective schools and the whole family hangs on the radio on Saturday afternoons during the football season.

The Governor is always prepared to go out on a limb and predict the score of the annual California-Stanford game. He is a good loser and when his predictions go awry, he has a stock answer for his hecklers: "They pay off on the score board, not my prophecies."

His staff is devoted to him and loyal to a degree despite the fact that he is not easy to work for. He is a stickler who insists that work be done promptly and correctly.

Both in public and private, his speech is peppered with homely maxims. His favorites include: "There's more than one way to skin a cat" and "We must learn to walk before we can run." He doesn't smoke and takes only an occasional drink.

The Warren family life is idyllic. When his six sons and daughters started arriving, Warren gave up golf in order to spend his spare time with them. He loves to hunt and fish, and the whole family is apt to go on such trips with him when he can spare the time.

Because Joe DiMaggio and Gil McDougald hail from California, the Warrens are Yankees fans who love to get daddy to bring them to New York when the Yanks are in the world series.

Life with the Warrens is on the informal side. The Governor walks to and from the capitol in Sacramento. He lunches at a drug store counter or at a little Spanish restaurant where they serve his favorite tamales.

Even in a Presidential race, Warren does not need any one to blow his horn. The Governor can blow his own. As a student he earned money playing the clarinet in local orchestras. He still carries a membership card in the musicians' union.

in such efforts with local, state, and federal agencies.

The morning session at 10 a. m. was called to order in a business meeting by the president, Chief Edwin Robb. A committee consisting of Robb, James Lavin, chief of the Atlantic Refinery fire dept., and chairman Robert Graham, fire Marshall of Bucks County, was chosen to study the new fire code.

adopted by Philadelphia. It is the purpose of this committee and the association to modernize the fire code.

The association accepted 59 new members, it was announced.

Gerald B. Horton, Deputy Director of the Eastern Training School, Ogontz Center, addressed the group in the morning on Civil Defense Training. Mr. Horton spoke of training during the last war and used Southampton England as an example of its value. He explained that the purpose of the course is to teach amateurs how to extinguish incipient fires thus allowing the professionals to fight important fires. He added that the Ogontz school was one of three federal schools for CD training.

He extended an invitation to all firemen to come to the school and learn to be an instructor, adding that sooner or later the professional firemen of the country will be responsible for CD training.

Following luncheon, the group toured the Fairless Plant of U. S. Steel Co., the Pennsbury school, Fairless Hills and Levittown.

The meals were prepared by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Edgely Fire Co.

It was announced that the next meeting will be held at Hyde Park in Reading.

See Great Interest In Swimming Program

Suter, 172 Elm street, Winder Village.

Of greatest interest in the Bristol area have been the beginner and intermediate swimming classes. They have served two very important purposes. First, and most important, the children have learned the basic safety rules of swimming. Second, they have had fun while gaining confidence in themselves by learning to swim the correct way.

Parents are urged to attend classes with their children whenever possible.

The Red Cross "learn to swim" program is a nation-wide plan used in camps, schools, colleges, as well as the armed forces. All instructors are thoroughly trained in water safety methods and handling small craft in addition to the teaching of swimming before they receive the instructor certificate. Michael DeAngelis, who will instruct in Bristol area, has been active in the program for some time.

Classes will start the week of July 7th at St. Francis pool, Eddington. Two morning classes will be held there, at 10 and 11, Monday through Friday. All afternoon classes, for the entire program, will be held at Silver Lake. The week of July 14th, morning classes will be held at the bridge in Newville. The morning classes will be held at St. Francis pool the week of July 28th and at Silver Lake the following week. No classes will be scheduled for the week of July 21st. Any child who has passed one test in the first two weeks will be able to register for an advanced class during that week.

in white satin. A small ruffle of white lace held the veils in place. The boys and girls of the intermediate grades of St. Thomas school then followed, the former wearing the dark trousers and white blouses with pale blue ties, and the girls attired in white dresses with wreaths of blue and white daisies in their hair. Next in line were the 12 boy graduates in navy blue coats and white trousers, each accompanied by a small page attired in a white suit. Each carried a single pink rose.

The girl graduates followed, attired in taffeta gowns of pastel hues of blue, pink, yellow and white with short puffed sleeves, the bodices each featured three net ruffles in front with a row of crystal buttons. Their full length skirts were worn in a hoop, and elbow length white gloves. They wore tiaras of small seed pearls. They carried nosegays of sweet peas and carnations.

They were accompanied by two small girls wearing gowns of white taffeta with a ruffled bertha collar, short puffed sleeves and long ruffled skirts. They carried small nosegays of the sweet peas and carnations. In their hair rested ruffled bands of white net.

The May Queen, Christine Christian, was attired in a similar gown of white taffeta, over which was worn a blue satin cape with a long train. This had a regal collar. She wore a seed pearl tiara in her hair and she carried a silver tray upon which rested the Queen's crown of white roses. She was accompanied by four small girls as train bearers. They also carried small nosegays of sweet peas and carnations. Accompanied by two altar boys, Father Rodgers was last in line of processionals.

Entering the church, the entire group sang the hymn "Bring Flowers of the Fairest". The May queen and her entire court proceeded to the main altar where the dedication to the Blessed Mother was recited. She then presented the crown of roses to Father who in turn placed it on the head of the Statue of the Blessed Mother. They then rendered the hymn "Mother Be Loved".

The boy graduates and their pages filed to the altar where they knelt and dedicated themselves to the Sacred Heart. While a hymn to the Sacred Heart was sung, the group then placed their roses on the railing. Following the singing of "Veni Creator" a short sermon was preached by the Rev. Father Rodgers. The services were brought to a close with solemn benediction of the most blessed sacrament.

Bride Wears White; Attendants Are Gowned In Lavender, Yellow

PHILADELPHIA, May 19 — Wearing a satin gown, with trim of Chantilly lace, and featuring a long lace-trimmed train, Miss Ruth Louise Kubernus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Friedrich Kubernus, Newportville road, Eddington, took the vows Saturday which united her in marriage to Mr. Dennis Calvin Moore, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis C. Moore, 3020 Emerald street. Her scalloped tiara was studded with pearls.

The four o'clock ceremony took place in Hope Lutheran Church, with the Rev. Mark E. Bennett officiating.

As Mrs. Anna Breen provided organ music, Mr. Kubernus escorted his daughter to the altar. Soprano, Miss Elizabeth Fields had her offerings "Oh Promise Me", "I Love You", and "The Lord's Prayer".

As maid of honor, the bride's sister, Miss Elfriede Kubernus, was dressed in green net and lace. The other attendants were: Miss Dorothy Davidson, wearing lavender; Miss Elaine Roach, in yellow. Their gowns were strapless, and their necklets featured mandarin collars. Each wore a picture hat and white doves, and carried an old-fashioned bouquet decorated with white oilies and net in colors matching their gowns.

Serving Mr. Moore as best man was his brother-in-law, Mr. George Kinloch; and ushers were Messrs. William and Charles Moore, brothers of the bride-groom.

The reception took place at seven p.m., 125 attending the function in Miss Turners Hall.

For a trip through New York and the New England states to Canada, Mrs. Moore chose a brown paisley suit, brown leather bag, brown slippers of leather and suede, brown straw hat with sea-hell decoration; white blouse and doves. The couple will make their home at 5238 N. Second street.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Curtis Loux,
Pastor Oakhurst Chapel
Pennel

Faith: That which is the basis for the very existence of mankind. Faith: The thing that causes our economic system to function. Faith: The thing that enables man to live with his fellowman. Faith: The thing that puts us into contact with God.

Faith must have a basis; for how could you put your faith; your trust, your confidence into something that does not exist? What is the basis of Faith? Your Faith? You must have faith in something; perhaps it is yourself, perhaps some friend, perhaps a system, it must be something.

To be fundamentally secure, our faith must be in something that is greater than ourselves. To find the highest ground for the establishment of our faith; we must put our faith in God. Our economic system is founded upon this fact, for our money, the medium of exchange, bears these words: "In God We Trust".

Where is your faith grounded? God seeks those who would put their trust into Him. To find Him; we must find Him through His Son, our Lord Jesus Christ. His words are: "He that cometh to Me I will in no wise cast out."

BOYS' BALL LEAGUE OPENS WITH FOUR TEAMS PLAYING

Opening day exercises of the Bristol Boys' League took place Saturday on Leedom's field. Following the ceremonies, the four teams of the loop played two exhibition games.

Percy G. Ford was master of ceremonies and gave the welcoming day address. He introduced the team managers and league personnel.

The sixty boys, players of the league, resplendent in new uniforms, were escorted from center-field to positions in the infield by the color guards of the Chester W. Terchon Post, VFW, and Robert W. Bracken Post, American Legion Junior Drum and Bugle Corps.

A flag-raising took place with both the VFW and Legion corps participating. The flag was raised by Miss Marie Marino, of the VFW color guard and "Call to Colors" was played by Joseph Cannellini, of the Legion corps. The crowd was then led in singing the "Star-Spangled Banner" by Percy Ford.

George Perkins, of the Bristol Borough Recreation Board, gave a short address and wished the boys a successful season.

Burgess I. Johnston Hetherington spoke to the boys, recalling that some time back he had played on the same field. Burgess Hetherington urged the boys to hold fast to the principles of clean sportsmanship.

Announcement was made that games would be played on Leedom's field every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings at six o'clock. The league will officially open this evening with the Eagles meeting the VFW nine.

The officials of the league extended their thanks to the Bucks County Rescue Squad, John Field, Sr., James Magee and Fletcher Carson for materials and services rendered, and to all who made opening day a success.

In the first exhibition game, the Giants and Hawks battled to a 4-4 draw, while in the second encounter the Eagles, 1951 champs, were shut out by the VFW team, 7-0.

Leedom's field, newly manicured, presented a colorful appearance with the backstop being decorated with American flags and with Old Glory proudly flying from the league's new flagpole in rightfield.
